

Choller House at the Corner

By: Roland W. Peterson

Once I stood
I was pretty
I was clean
I was gladly seen
I was proud, I was recognized

Passers-by stopped and looked through my windows and opened my door

Then came the day I was not needed any more
I was neglected, forgotten
I became dilapidated
I had no windows and no door
No one wanted me any more
Me without windows and no door

I became ... obsolete
Ignored
Discarded
I became the home of the unwanted

They threw garbage on my floor
Me without windows and no door

My heart cried out
I trembled when I heard the word Choller House
But no one listened any more

Then ... then one day
A man called Jan came this way
He stopped in front of me
Me with no windows and no door

I heard him say, I want to see no more

You will shine like never before
And tomorrow when you arise again
People will no longer look passed you any more
The tiles will shine on your floor
And San Nicolas San Nicolas we know that some day you will be better than before
